NEW PARTNERSHIP LAUNCHED WITH UNION OF PAN ASIAN COMMUNITIES THANKS TO STUDENT SAW KAY

As the coronavirus pandemic continues to impact San Diegans across the county, Feeding San Diego is responding by getting more nutritious food into the community. Most recently, we launched a new partnership with the Union of Pan Asian Communities (UPAC). Based in City Heights, UPAC distributes dry goods and fresh produce from Feeding San Diego every Friday. “Everybody in my community is living paycheck to paycheck. I would like people in San Diego to keep working together, connecting, and helping each other,” shared Saw Kay, the student behind this partnership.

FOOD RESCUE VAN AWARDED TO BROTHER BENNO TO INCREASE HUNGER RELIEF IN NORTH COUNTY

Feeding San Diego awarded Brother Benno Foundation, an Oceanside-based community partner, a new food rescue van to enable the organization to rescue more high-quality food to address hunger. Brother Benno Foundation is one of Feeding San Diego’s largest food rescue partners. Last year Brother Benno, in partnership with Feeding San Diego, rescued close to 1.1 million pounds of high-quality food from local grocery stores and retailers that would have otherwise gone to waste.

BALLAST POINT BREWING CO. AND THE PADRES FOUNDATION PARTNER TO SUPPORT FEEDING SAN DIEGO

Ballast Point Brewing Company and The Padres Foundation are teaming up to support Feeding San Diego’s COVID-19 relief efforts through sales of the official craft beer of the San Diego Padres, Ballast Point’s Swingin’ Friar Ale. For each case sold between March through June 30, Ballast Point and The Padres Foundation will donate $2 per case toward Feeding San Diego. “No one should go hungry and Feeding San Diego continues to do a tremendous job making food accessible to those in need, now more than ever,” says Ballast Point CEO, Brendan Watters.
